MBA ’18

The professors at Northeastern are just as committed as you are. They really want to see you apply what you learn in your current and future career.
Dana Charles

MBA ’19, Corporate Renewal and Entrepreneurship

Why did you choose D’Amore-McKim?
Aligning career goals and finding a Part-Time MBA program with flexibility were the two key factors in my decision. I wanted to find a program that offered the right balance of courses—those designed to push my intellectual curiosity and equip me with the right business skills to progress professionally.

What has been your most valuable experience so far?
My professors are engaging and bring unique perspectives into the classroom. I benefited tremendously from learning under their guidance, pulling from their industry expertise, which helped me to focus on mastering critical skills that I need to get ahead in my career.

How has the Part-Time MBA experience impacted your career?
My strategic decision-making has improved. I’m able to better approach business problems by considering diverse perspectives, while viewing it all through the lens of leadership.

Ian Walch

MBA ’17, Corporate Finance and Entrepreneurship

Why did you choose D’Amore-McKim?
Northeastern’s location and name recognition were both a powerful draw, but more importantly, the level of education and small class sizes helped seal the deal.

What skills have you built as a result of your experience?
Being able to apply classroom lessons from other industries to my day-to-day work has been incredible. Additionally, the ability to quickly but thoroughly develop business plans with clear direction has proven to be valuable.

What advice would you give a prospective student?
If you’re thinking about the Part-Time MBA, you should sit in on one of the classes. Seeing the quality of the professors and potential classmates firsthand will show you how impactful the experience will be.

The D’Amore-McKim Part-Time MBA gives you the flexibility to explore areas of concentration that meet your career objectives. Areas of concentration include:

Corporate Finance
Create a new baseline of financial knowledge and master how to implement financial strategy through the study of global markets.

Corporate Renewal
Enhance your experience and understanding of the approaches and planning required to turn around troubled companies.

Entrepreneurship
Learn to assess personal aptitude and potential for small businesses, find and evaluate business opportunities, secure essential funding, and how to organize and manage such functional business areas as manufacturing, marketing, accounting, and finance.

Healthcare Management
Explore core business strategies that apply to a healthcare industry that is continuously in flux.

International Business
Learn what it takes to make business decisions on a global scale in the areas of finance, marketing, supply chain, and more.

Investments
Learn to develop and apply sound strategies that tackle real-world financial challenges in both domestic and international financial markets.

Marketing
Acquire knowledge and skills necessary to carry out essential marketing functions—from branding new products to advertising services and exploring new consumer audiences.

Mutual Fund Management
Further your analytical knowledge and develop unique approaches to performing managerial tasks related to the management and operations of mutual funds.

Supply Chain Management
Understand the most reliable, cost-effective ways to source materials, assemble products, manage inventory, and deliver products to customers.

Technological Entrepreneurship
Gain the ability to assess both technological and business issues from an integrative perspective while learning how to be successful in creating a business.

I’ve used skills I’ve learned in finance, accounting, investments, and general core courses to be able to discuss challenges that impact our business.
Christine Macoul

MBA ’19, Marketing and International Business

How has the Part-Time MBA experience impacted your career?
It’s incredible how much I see rolling over from school into work and vice versa. I’ve learned that there isn’t always one solution to a problem. Listening to classroom discussions, you hear different points of view and realize that multiple vantage points make sense. That’s something that’s carried over into my current job—realizing that sometimes different solutions aren’t necessarily right or wrong but rather just varying approaches that could very well solve the same problem.

What would you say to a prospective student considering D’Amore McKim for their business degree?
I’d tell them to strongly consider the positive impact the program could have on their career path. One of the greatest strengths of this program is the heavy emphasis on independent thinking. Classes are geared towards open discussions and students are encouraged to incorporate their own personal experiences into classroom contributions.

Where do you see yourself in 5–10 years?
I’d love to be involved with brand marketing, advertising, or creative marketing development—I’m eager to see where my path takes me.

Ken Tan

MBA ’19, Supply Chain Management

What has been the most valuable experience?
I’ve learned the value of collaboration and am able to understand how to manage people and synthesize tasks more efficiently. Being able to analyze the situations and goals has showed me where my focus should be.

What skills are you building through the Part-Time MBA experience?
I’ve always appreciated how hard it is to balance work, school, and life. This experience challenged me to balance my time appropriately—a skill I feel I’ve mastered.

What advice would you give a prospective student?
You will be able to relate the experience to your profession. The classes are tailored in a way that you can create parallels with your job. The Part-Time MBA is very immersive and offers the true experience of being a student.
