GROW YOUR INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS SKILLS IN TWO COUNTRIES IN TWO SEMESTERS.

Landing the best jobs in international management requires solid business knowledge and tangible multicultural experience. What better way to prepare yourself than by building relevant business experience in multiple countries?

Northeastern’s MS in International Management program (MIM), delivered in partnership with International Partnership of Business Schools (IPBS), lets you combine two semesters of study in two of six countries. For example, your first semester of study could be at a respected university in Ireland, France, Italy, or Mexico with a second semester of study at Northeastern University’s prestigious D’Amore-McKim School of Business. In just 10 months, you could have a valuable degree from Northeastern and the advanced business knowledge, acumen, and cultural understanding gained by study in two different countries and in two different learning environments.

Throughout the program, you will develop a global mindset and experience amazing personal and professional growth. As you sharpen your cross-cultural skills, you’ll learn about the business climates of two countries, and you will come to appreciate the interplay between what is “local” and what is “international” in the field of management. You will work with peers from different backgrounds, learning to effectively work in broadly diverse teams. And you will be mentored by experienced teachers with excellent academic credentials and deep industry experience.

The Northeastern MIM, compact and enormously exciting, gives you so much in such a short time. Study in two countries allows you to gain a wealth of international experience. Study in two leading business schools gives you an understanding of theoretical business along with the nuances and perspectives from studying in their respective countries.

The MIM program is both life-enriching and career-building, as it provides you with the knowledge and the network you need to compete in the global marketplace.

Northeastern University is ranked among the top 50 research universities in the U.S.A. by U.S. News & World Report and is recognized around the globe for its expertise in international business.
